Self is not an entity that could be completely formulated through our verbal language. In this day and age, self or selfness has become an arena of push and pull with ever growing intensity between personality, self-awareness, the subconscious and the external social power outside ourselves. In this post-literary era of speaking, the advance in information and visual communication technology further complicates the ways we discover and express the meaning of self. The artists in this art exhibition endeavor to find meaningful expression that could represent the relation between the personal and the social.

"Exposure" showcases works by Indonesian artists (Dwi Setianto, Eddi Prabandono, Lie Fhung and S. Teddy Darmawan), who are all interested in visual exploration that allows them to reveal their personal-self and social-self through the language of objects, sound installation and imageries.

A live performance entitled "Hong Kong King Kong" by Dwi Setianto and a Japanese sound artist Nao Sakamoto will also be featured in this exciting art exhibition. Coming from different cultures and backgrounds, these talented artists will surely enrich our aesthetic experience through their audio, visual and aural work.
